Hosted by
The Center for Strategy, Execution, Valuation
Strategic Risk Management Lab
Kellstadt Graduate School of Business DePaul University

Friday, December 4 2009
8:00am – 12:00 (noon)
DePaul Center (Room 8005) 1 East Jackson Blvd. - Chicago, IL

The Center for Strategy, Execution, and Valuation at DePaul University is pleased to announce an exclusive morning executive forum for management teams and directors on Friday, June 19, 2009 - Strategic Risk Management. Strategic Risk Management is a necessary core competency for directors and management teams. Standard & Poor's now reviews Enterprise Risk Management (ERM) programs, with a focus on Strategic Risk Management as part of its rating process for non-financial companies. This executive forum will present leading Strategic Risk Management practices from high performance companies that can be adapted by your organization.

What is the Executive Forum's Content?

The agenda of our December 4th executive forum will begin with a networking breakfast, followed by presentations by Dr. Mark L. Frigo, Director of the Center for Strategy, Execution, and Valuation, on leading practices in Strategic Risk Management, including discussion on how to embed strategic risk management and ERM into your strategic planning and strategy execution processes, including Balanced Scorecards. The forum will include diagnostics for assessing your organization's ERM, GRC and Strategic Risk Management processes and capabilities. It will include a session on how to conduct a Strategic Risk Assessment as the first step for effective risk management. The executive forum will conclude with a panel discussion by executives, directors and leading risk management practitioners who will share practical insights for connecting strategy execution and risk management.

Who Should Attend?

Management teams and directors involved in ERM and related governance and control functions and those advising boards and management in strategic risk management and ERM can benefit from this seminar.
